

PLUS: The Justices' Newest Test ■ The 2021 Elite Trial Lawyers

THE NATIONAL LAW JOURNAL

An ALM Publication

NLJ.COM | October 2021

THE SUPREME COURT DIVIDED

WITH ABORTION, RELIGION AND GUN RIGHTS ON THE TABLE, THE JUSTICES MAY SHUN THE NARROW DECISION-MAKING OF LAST TERM.

movers

Jeffrey Hammer
King & Spalding

Erica Zolner
Redgrave

Martha McGarry
Mayer Brown

Amanda Rosenberg
Mayer Brown

Vivien Peaden
Baker Donelson

Vinette Godelia
Stearns Weaver Miller

LATERALS

KING & SPALDING (Los Angeles): Jeffrey Hammer joined the firm as a partner in the trial and global disputes practice. His practice focuses on complex commercial litigation, securities and financial services litigation, class actions, and enforcement actions, with clients that include Fortune 500 companies, movie studios, tech companies and insurance companies. Previously, he co-led Caldwell Hammer with Chris Caldwell.

REDGRAVE LLP (Chicago): Erica Zolner joined the firm as a partner. The firm focuses on e-discovery and information law, and Zolner's experience includes almost 20 years with complex business litigation and class action matters. Her experience also includes counseling clients on development and execution of defensible e-discovery processes in regard to commercial litigation. Previously, she was a partner at Kirkland & Ellis.

MAYER BROWN (New York City and Los Angeles): Martha McGarry joined the firm as a partner in its corporate and securities practice. Her experience includes being a strategic adviser to clients such as American Express, Coca-Cola and The Hershey Co. McGarry advises clients in early-stage strategic planning, and advises companies in various industries such as consumer products, finance, telecommunications, real estate, technology, gaming, defense and pharmaceuticals. Amanda Rosenberg joined the firm as a partner in the tax transactions and consulting practice and member of the global projects and infrastructure department. Her focus was on federal income tax law, renewable energy investment, energy tax credits, government incentive programs and domestic and international project finance transactions. Previously, both attorneys were partners at Norton Rose Fulbright.

DAY PITNEY (New York City): Mindy Tompkins joined the firm as a partner in the health care life sciences in technology practice. She represents health care professionals, medical groups, hospitals and managed care companies in corporate transactions on contract preparation, negotiation and review for transactions. Tompkins also advises health care clients on employment law and prepares and reviews employment contracts and non-competition agreements for physicians. Previously, she was a partner at Murtha Cullina.

NEW ARRIVALS

BAKER DONELSON (Atlanta): Vivien Peaden joined the firm as of counsel in the data privacy and technology practices. Her experience includes partnering with clients on privacy and cybersecurity challenges and navigating technology transactions. Previously, she was in-house counsel for The Boston Consulting Group.

MORITT HOCK & HAMROFF (Garden City, New York): Ilona Posner has joined the firm as counsel in the real estate practice group. Her experience includes advising on complex real estate transactions, counseling clients on converting commercial properties to condominiums and the subsequent sale of individual condominium units. Her clients include corporate clients and real estate developers. Previously, she was of counsel at Westerman Ball Ederer Miller Zucker & Sharfstein.

STEARNS WEAVER MILLER (Tampa and Tallahassee, Florida): Vinette Godelia, Amelia Savage and Susan Stephens joined the firm as shareholders. Godelia represents clients in regards to land use and real estate development, and focuses her practice on negotiation of complex approvals under state growth management laws. Savage's practice focuses on environmental and natural resources law, helping clients obtain regulatory environmental permits. Stephens' experience focuses on environmental and natural resource and administrative law, including rulemaking practice and procedure and administrative litigation. Godelia will be based in Tampa. Savage and Stephens will be based in Tallahassee. Previously, all three were attorneys at Hopping Green & Sams.

Pearl Wu is the editorial Recognition Desk Manager at ALM Media.